Now, a tax on the calval of the bonds may be plausibly held to be a direct tax in the sense of the Constitution, and, if this view should prevail, the tax would have to be levied by the rule of apportionment, which, as the bonds are scarcely owned at all in one-half of the country and are very uncus of the country and are very uncus of the country and the other half, would plainly work extreme injustice.

THE CASE OF MR LEOOKS.

Mr. Brook, of New York, was ousted by a pretty high and strong handed dearly by a p ston, which they will not exercise upon them elves, they have exercise upon their political epponents. In the last Congres, under pretence of deciding the qual tications of members to their seats, several members of the minority were, in point of fact, expelled from the House. In the first place, a member from the Stare of Michigan, under the pretence of an investigation of his right to a seat, was trined out of the House. The question related to the validity of certain votes which had been given in that State at the election, and the precise question had leen determined by the Supreme Court of Michigan. Therefore, it was the law of that State, and their decision was binding. It would have been bluding upon the Supreme Court of the United States if a question involving the same point had ever been brought before it. It was hinding upon the House of Representatives as the law of Michigan applicable to the case; but, in contempt of it, a member duly elected and chosen was turned from his seat and a radical put in his place.

ADDRESS.

It becomes my pleasant duty to call this Convention to order, and to me it is a pleasant task. In this beautiful building which has but ju t been dedicated to the good work I can rejoice at the success which has crown of our efforts as an Association. When the call was published last year, asking for a Convention at Milwankee, many of us feared lest the attempt should be a failure. We went tremblingly to the meeting, not knowing what God intended by the occasion. But, thank God, he had a purpose. An influence went out from that Convention which even now is felt through all the Northwest. Places which before were spiritually dead are now situred up by active and energetic Young Men's Christian Associations which owe their very life to that convection. Its good results cannot be estimated. Some met with us there who will never meet good results cannot be estimated. Some unet with us there who will never unest with us sgain on earth. When we join them it will be to part no more.

It is becoming that we review our work as societies. Most of the Associations were weak when the alarm sounded for war. We then joined in with all our energies to alleviate the sufferings of our solders. During that time our home work could not be fully attended to. Now that ouier reigns again we must consider war. We then joined in with all our energies to allevinte the sufferings of our soldwrs. During that time our home work could not be fully attended to. Now that quiet reigns again we must consider cur unission. It is particularly this, i.e., to save the young men who come in such great numbers from rural districts. Cities represent the glory and the shame, the wealth and the poverty of humanity. Young men have left quiet homes and loving parents to make their future in eities. Few come who are not anxious to gain for themselves a good name. None intend to bring sorrow to their anxions parents. They are kept busy all duy and at night find no loving welcome at their hoarding houses.

is night hind no loving welcome at their hoarding houses.

Finding no sympathy in business circles, and no charm in what should be their homes, they are casily led into vice and rum by men who are constantly on the watch for just such persons. Thus, for the sheer lack of a kind word or a friendly interest they allow themselves to pass nterest, they allow themselves to pass from had to worse, and, if not checked, are from and to worse, and, it not enecased, are hepelessly lost. It is our work to care for such. We must throw around them "home influences." There is also another class that we must endeavor to reach. I mean those who have been brought up in the cities but who have been brought up in the cities that we must endeavor to reach. tearfal mothers and sorrowing fathers long to have this means blessed to the sulvation of their sons. This Association knows no denomination, and is thus free from any doctrinal fetters.

All who love and honor Christ as tho risen son of God may here join in prayer, and labor for the advancement of the ends for which we are handed. Should this recognition secondly hand before the safety and the safety and the safety and the safety are considered to the safety and the safety are considered soon which are handed. association accomplish nothing more than to accomplish a good will and kin lly feel the during was discontinued to give way to the noonday prayer meeting. This meeting was one of the most interesting of the week, and was participated in hy a large number of persons present, as many as three attempting to obtain the floor at one time. Time forbids further particulars.

Devotional exercises from two till three o'clock, which were as usual interesting and well attended. The regular business was resumed at three o'clock; the order for the hour was "Questions and Answers." A large number of questions in writing were handed in, read by the chair, and auswered by the delegates. Many of these questions trought forth short, pointed speeches by persons qualified to answer them. About 4 o'clock the tollowing dispatch was received and read in the meeting:

D. L. Moody, President, &c "D. L. Moody, President, de:
"George Cookmau, commission merchant and Ex president of the Philadelphia Association, attended to business on Tuesday, and died at midnight. Sudden death-sudden glory. He was one of the converted brothers I spoke of yesterday. Tell your young men to work for Jesus while it is called to day.
"GEO. H. STUART."

The reading of this dispatch was immediately followed by singing the hymn

The police of the First District having received information that a prize fight was to take place near this city this morning, repaired to the locality, and found a number of men engaged in preparing a ring. The trood took alarm and started off, but the police pursued and sneeded in capturing 21 persons and locked them up. All but five succeeded in procuring bail, and were released. The principals are supposed to have escaped with another crowd, which was too far off for the police to reach. A race of road locomotives recently took place in England.
